Fairness to All

At a meeting in Stony Plain last Friday evening, criticism was levelled at some elected representatives of the County of Parkland.

We could have reported the meeting in this issue. However, at Monday's meeting of the County Council the matter will be considered and it is the feeling of the publisher of this newspaper that in fairness to those concerned, both sides of the issue should be presented simultaneously.

The matter was tabled for 1:30 at Monday's council meeting, too late for this week's deadline. However, The Western Review will be represented at the meeting, and will endeavor to report factually, both sides of the issue in next week's paper.

Election Work In Full Swing

Busy people in the few weeks left before the provincial election on Monday, August 30th, are Returning Officer A. L. (Roy) Kavamberg and Election Clerk Everitt Brandt.

Mr. Kvamberg farms near Warburg and Mr. Brandt is a longtime resident of the Violet Grove area. Both are experienced in the field from elections of previous years.

Nomination day is Monday, August 16th between 12:00 noon and 2:00 p.m. Already declared as candidates for the Drayton Valley seat are Tom Johnson, Social Credit; Rusty Zander, Progressive Conservative; and Alvin Harmacy, N.D.P. All candiates are required to file with the Returning Officer on August 16th, which is also the last chance for others to enter the contest.

Included with the August 30th general election will be a plebiscite on Daylight Saving Time. Advance poll will be held at the Centannial Civic Centre on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the week preceeding the election.

FIRE CHIEF RESIGNS

Fire Chief Donald E. Greiner has tendered his resignation because his work is keeping him away from the town and not permitting him to devote as much time as he feels he should to the Fire Department.

A meeting of the volunteer fire department was held recently and the matter of a new chief discussed at some length. It was agreed that a nominating committee of Elmer Madsen, David Ellery and Harold Reinhart would present the names of two candidates at the next meeting.

Some discussion also took place on the merit of appointing a Fire Prevention and Protection Officer from the department. The matter was tabled until after reorganization.

D. V. Highlights

BY MRS. EDITH DEBY

Sincere sympathy is extended to the families of Mr. Ken Wood and Mr. Ron McCartney.

Mrs. Joan Reynolds is looking forward to a holiday with her son and daughter-in-law, Cpl. and Mrs. Gordon Reynolds, in Chilliwack.

The Greaves family picnic was held this year at the Moon Lake Hall on August 1st. Seventy-five members of this pioneer family attended. They included the Tuckers, the Bills, the Jevnes, the Urchyshyns, the Hunters, the Hutzels and the Weitings. The golf tournament was held at Evansburg. The trophy for men was won by Ted Greaves of Edmonton and the trophy for women by Beryl Greaves also of Edmonton. The team of Johnny Bills and Dennis Broughton won the horseshoe contest. A pot luck dinner was served at noon. This was the 13th annual picnic held.

A warm wlecome to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hallam, of Red Deer, who have just arrived to live in our town.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johanneson will be leaving for Britain by air on August eighteenth for a month long visit. It lacks one week of being twenty-six years since Mr. Johanneson returned to Canada following the Second World War. Mrs. Johanneson, a war bride, followed after her husband. Mrs. Johanneson has had a holiday in Britain in the interval but Mr. Johanneson is looking forward eagerly to seeing the changes and to seeing old friends.

Old friends of the Cameron family were grieved by the untimely death of John Cameron last week. John was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cameron and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cameron all of Rocky Rapids. Our sympathy is with John's parents and brothers in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. John McLeod have just come to make their home in our town. They spent the last year in Odessa, Texas but this area is not unknown to Mr. McLeod since he worked here at one time. Hope you'll enjoy living in our town, Mr. and Mrs. McLeod.

We understand that Miss Linda Urchyshyn is wearing a sparkler on the significant finger and that Mr. Evan Davies is the lucky man.

Mrs. Roy Burrows and Mrs. C. Taylor were in Olds for a one day refresher course in flower arranging. Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Burrows have judged the flower entries at the Women's Institute Flower Show for several years.

Mrs. Helmer Johanson visited friends in the area for several days last week. The Johansons had a ranch at Lodgepole for many years before moving to B.C. Mr. Johanson passed away two years ago at their home at Lumby, B. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Urchyshyn enjoyed a trip to the Okanagan last month. They found Mrs. Edith Dunington in good health but rather undecided as to whether or not she will visit Alberta this year.

Miss Joanne Cotton will join her mother in Vancouver for a flight to England later this month She will be gone about four weeks and has been invited to visit Mr. VanDorp's sister, in Holland.

Mr. VanDorp's parents of Waddinsveen, Holland and his sister, Miss Van Dorp of Waddinsveen and Mrs. Huink, of Lyden, Holland have been Drayton Valley visitors this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Van Dorp Sr. arrived early in July and the sisters by chartered flight to Vancouver later where Mr. and Mrs. Van Dorp (Dutch and Edith) accompanied by Dutch's parents met them. The visitors crowded a lot of sight-seeing into their stay. They toured the Rockies and the Bad Lands. One highlight of the trip was a flight over the town given them by Mr. Roy Burrows.

July Hail Activity Said Near Normal

In many respects hail activity in July was close to normal, but the month also had some unusual aspects. Hail was reported from somewhere within a 90 mile radius of Penhold on 21 days during the month - exactly equal to the long term average. The number of hail reports mailed into the Hail Studies Project totalled 1100 - slightly above average.

But the percentage of hail larger than walnut was well below normal, this being due in part to the unusually cool temperatures during the first half of the month. Although it hailed on eleven out of the first thirteen days, most of the storms were small and poorly organized and hence produced nothing in the way of significant damage.

The first prolonged warm and humid spell of weather in the middle of the month ended abruptly on the evening of Friday, July 23, as a surge of cold air swept down from the northwest. This brought with it what now appears to have been one of the worst storms ever to hit central Alberta. Hundreds of square miles of the countryside around Red Deer were damaged by this storm.

Some areas have the appearance of late fall with the fields yellow and the trees stripped of their leaves. East of Haynes, which bore the brunt of the storm, there are even dents in telephone poles! Insurance payments of two million dollars are expected to be paid out to farmers for damage suffered in this storm but the total real loss to crops and property could exceed $10 million.

The unusual aspect of this July was the fact that most of the hail damage was confined to two huge swaths on one day instead of amongst many smaller swaths on several days as usually happens. The month's total damage was probably no greater than for many past years, but the economic impact is less easily absorbed when such a confined region is affected by one storm.

Hail activity continued to run well below normal in the southern part of the province between Calgary and the U.S. border. Hail was reported on eight days, and only on two of these was there any hail larger than walnut size. No significant damage was reported from this area in July.

During the month the Alberta Hail Studies Project conducted seven cloud seeding experiments on five days. Valuable data were collected on all these storms including radar measurements, over 1000 additional hail reports by telephone survey, and hundreds of rain and hail samples by the sampling trucks and from the special sampling stations. These experiments will continue until August 13, when the T-33 jet aircraft will return to the National Aeronautical Establishment in Ottawa.

All of the forums will commence at 8:30 ant the candidates of all three political parties are expected to be in attendance. It is hoped the public will abail themselves of this opportunity to come and hear about the different political platforms.

On August 25th Dr. Hugh Horner P.C. member of the Legislative Assembly for the Barrhead constituency will speak at Alder Flats.

Arrangements are being finalized to hold a political meeting in Warburg during the last week of the current election campaign.

Minutes of Continuation of County Council Meeting

Regular meeting of the Parkland County Council continued on Friday, July 30th. Minutes as recorded by secretary and not yet adopted.

Members present were Reeve Leslie N. Miller, Councillors Peter Bakker, George Mann and Ivan Vowk.

The following representatives from the Town of Stony Plain were also present: Deputy-Mayor E. G. Miller, Councillors H. P. Hennig and J. Blackburn and Secretary-Manager E. A. Pink.

Considerable discussion again took place respecting the location of the new sewage lagoon by the Town. The Town representatives requested approval to establish the lagoon on the second site chosen, which is on the N ½ NE 1 and SE 12-53-28-4. Some members of County Council were of the opinion that the lagoon should be located on the original proposed site which was in the SE 1-53-28-4.

The Town representatives left the meeting for the matter to be further considered by County Council.

It was moved and carried that the second proposed location for a lagoon site for the Town of Stony Plain, in the N ½ NE 1 and S ½ SE 12-53-28-4, be approved subject to the following conditions, and that Reeve Miller be excused from voting on this question:

CONDITIONS OF APPROVAL

The Town of Stony Plain must comply with all By-laws passed by the County of Parkland No. 31 for the purpose of regulating sanitation and health conditions. Drainage of the lagoon must be subject to approval of County Authorities. The lagoon site must be fenced, the perimeter treed, grassed and landscaped, and noxious weeds controlled. The municipal body establishing the lagoon must accept the responsibility for ensuring that the watercourse used to drain the lagoon is adequate and capable of handling the sewage, without the sewage flooding and ponding areas downstream. Where the same watercourse is used by more than one municipal body, they must accept full, joint responsibility for Clause 3.

LAGOON RELOCATION
TOWN OF SPRUCE GROVE.

An application by the Town of Spruce Grove to relocate its sewage lagoon on the SW 23-53-27-4 was considered.

It was agreed that this application be approved subject to the following conditions:

Where the same watercourse is used by more than one municipal body, they must accept full, joint responsibility for Clause 3.

A further condition of approval is that the Town construct a sluice on the west and north sides of the lagoon to provide surface drainage into the creek, in accordance with recommendations and approval of the Proyincial Department of Water Resources.

Councillor Mann reported having received a request from the Village of Seba Beach to rent a grader for approximately two days to do some street maintenance in the village.

It was agreed to rent a grader with operator to the Village of Seba Beach, when available, at Provincial Government rates.

It was reported that a large culvert in the railroad grade in the SE 18-53-5-5 causes flooding and damage to the County road in the SE 18-53-5-5. It was agreed to request the C.N.R. to install control gates on the culvert to control the flow during peak run-off periods.

The office addition contract includes the installation of six electrical outlets on the east side of the addition for car plug-in and it has been determined that the area will accomodate parking of twelve cars.

It was agreed that six additional electrical outlets be installed at a cost of $506.00.

HART CANTELON

Readers wishing to write to Mr. Cantelon are invited to do so. All letters to be forwarded to Hart Cantelon Counselling Services Ltd., 1600 Cambridge Building, Edmonton. Please include a stamped self-addressed envelope to ensure a reply.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:

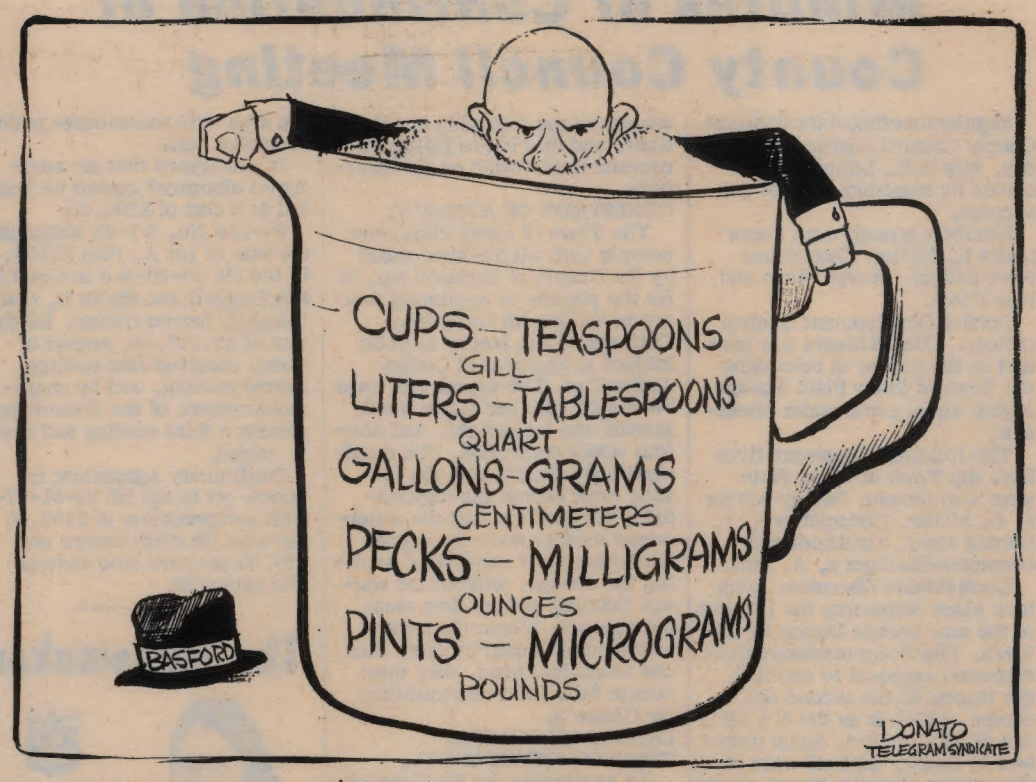
I don't know where to start so that it makes order out of chaos. You see, I told my husband to leave last Friday. He moved his clothes and some of his belongings to his mother's. He came back early Saturday morning and all day long he begged and pleaded and promised he would change. He said he'd stop drinking, going out with other women, slapping me around when he's drinking. He has promised all these things several times before and I've gone along with it. In a months time or less, it's all forgotten and he does the same all over again. This is the first time, I demanded that he move out. The thing is now, that is has happened so often that I don't feel anything for this man. I don't want him here. But he won't leave. I can't leave, financially, for I have three children. The house we live in, is in my name, as it was the house from my previous marriage. He says that he's made an appointment with a psychiatrist. I don't know if he'll keep it or not. I asked him to make a appointment with a counsellor for us, buy he says the counsellor would probably advise a separation or divorce and he wants to prove he will change. What steps can I take now?

Dear Concerned:

My guess is that your husband is an alcoholic. His pattern of behaviour fits this fact to a "T". You start with a counsellor yourself. See if your husband keeps his appointment with the psychiatrist. Then have your counsellor and the psychiatrist relate to each other by finding out just how far your husband is on the alcoholic road. It the worst comes to the worst, you can get out by seeking legal help for a separation. Once this step is taken the Provincial Social Development Office will be able to help you make financial arrangements through the assistance of a caseworker. During your own counselling sessions, you will be helped to sort out your own feelings as to whether or not there is enough left to build anything on, even if your husband is able to change. Don't accept reconcilliation until counselling has advised it, and don't put up with any more from now on.

Dear Mr. Cantelon:

I am writing in respect to our 15 year old son, who is the eldest of four children. To this point, we have had very little trouble with him. He is an honor student, interested in sports, music, etc. and is popular with a group of boys who have similar interests and academic standings. Our problem is that whenever he is refused some request by us (and this is very rarely) he will give us the "silent treatment" for many days. During this period, he neglects his studies which are his interest; he neglects his duties which are to care for his room, take out the garbage, and care for his dog. Also he is arrogant to both his father and I and the other children. I don't feel that I can just ignore this silence and arrogance for such long periods of time - not only for his sake, but also because I feel he is setting a very poor example for our three younger children. This problem is definitely affecting us all.



Dear Concerned Mother:

Your son could be just plain stubborn. Or, you may have given in to him far more often than you have realized throughout the years, and he has never learned to live with the word "no". On the other hand, he may have some real areas of deep hostility that need to be looked at with some help from outside the family. Just in case it is the latter, I'd suggest you're asking him to see a counsellor when you get back from holiday, and before he starts school this fall. No one person's behaviour should be permitted to affect the whole household. He owes it to all of you to find out what is at the root or the problem and then do something about it. As his parents, it is your duty to see that he gets to help he needs.

Seek Reactions On T.T. Report

Alberta's minister of agriculture, the Hon. Henry A. Ruste, announced last week that the deadline for individuals and groups to submit their reactions to the Tradition and Transition Report has been changed from September 1 to October 31, 1971.

He explained that the deadline has been extended two months because of representations made to the government in response to the advertisement inviting groups and individuals to express their opinions and views on the report. The report, compiled by a group of consultants, was tabled during the last session of the legislature and contains a wide range of recommendations on extension education for today's farmers.

Mr. Ruste again emphasized that none of the recommendations will be adopted as government policy until farmers and agricultural organizations have had a chance to evaluate them and express their views.

Temple that took 100 years to carve

In the second century B.C., monks began sculpting the hills and solid rock cliffs in western India into a series of beautifully carved temples which can still be enjoyed by Canadian visitors today. The most impressive of all these temples is the remarkable Kailasa at Ellora, carved during the 8th and 9th centuries A.D. and considered one of the wonders of India.

Instead of erecting the temple as it would be today, a huge single rock-cliff was selected and the stone-cutters began to sculpt their temple with chisel and mallet. The Kailasa took over 100 years to complete.

Working from the top of the cliff down thereby eliminating the need for scaffolding, the craftsmen chipped out and removed three million cubic feet of rock to form a vast pit 107 feet deep, 276 feet long and 154 feet wide (almost the size of a Canadian football field). In the centre was left a huge stone block which was to become a temple as intricately carved and detailed as an ivory miniature.

Today you can still marvel at the foresight of an unknown designer who was able to envision a gigantic temple emerging from a mountainside.

Former Church Moderator Seeks Help for Pakistan

Dr. Robert B. McClure, former Moderator of the United Church who has just returned from a first-hand inspection of Pakistani refugee camps, will speak in Edmonton during a two-day visit, August 9 - 10.

Dr. McClure, an internationally-respected humanist, has been touring Canada to awaken public opinion to the immensity of the Pakistani crisis. There are now 3,800,000 refugees stricken by starvation and cholera. Compounded by murder and bloodshed, the situation is getting worse and has shocked the whole world.

The outspoken churchman, a medical missionary who served in China, India and the Middle East, has been critical of Canadians for not doing enough to help in the enormous Pakistani tragedy.

The Canadian government recently announced plans for $7,000,000 in aid, but Dr. McClure maintains that Canada should give India its surplus wheat to reimburse it for the rice it gives refugees who are streaming into camps around Calcutta.

The Alfred L. Fausak family of the Evansburg area was among the winners.

Monday, the 1971 edition of Klondike Days was designated as "Country Day", during which the farm families were treated to a barbecue dinner, and a supper at the Klondike Palace.

At about 1:00 p.m. Monday the families were given a tour of the Alberta Legislative building, where they met and talked with Lieutenant-Governor Grant MacEwan. Premier Strom, who had originally planned to meet with the families, was unable to because he attended the funeral in Saskatchewan of the late premier of the province.

WHAT DOES THE FARMER GET FOR HIS PRODUCTS?

Fact -- Farmers have not been getting the benefit of higher food prices. Average wholesale farm prices have been declining, with high food production and over-supplied wholesale markets.

Here's what the farmer has been averaging in receipts, on the average, quite recently:- For Beef - about 54¢ for each $1 spent on choice beef by the consumer; For milk - About 12¢ for each 32¢ quart of milk sold in stores; For Wheat - Around 4½¢ for grain used in a 27¢ loaf of bread; and about 5½¢ for the corn in a 35¢ box of cornflakes; and average of 19¢ for each $1 worth of wood grown for pulp.

And here's what the farmer has had to live on in the recent years, taking average figures of 1967 as an example: about $3,975 per farm in net income; Roughly $895 of disposable personal income available per farm person; and about $1.29 per hour for farm work performed compared with non-farm worker's 1967 average of between $2.35 and $2.95 per hour.

WHAT DO FARMERS PROVIDE BESIDE FOOD?

Fact -- Farmers are heavy contributors to the health of our economy and are the hope of a famine-threatened world. The farmer continues to have a far-reaching effect on domestic and world affairs as employer, taxpayer, consumer and supplier.

Agriculture is one of Canada's essential industries with capital assets valued at better than $15 billion and a labour force of about 558,000. It has been contributing about 4% of the Gross Domestic Product.

Employer -- Some 427,000 people are independent agricultural producers. That's the estimated number of farms based on the last census. But over 215,000 more people (who store, process and merchandise agricultural products) have more jobs directly related to agriculture. And thousands of others work for producers of petroleum, building material, electric power, fertilizers, farm machinery, autos, trucks, twine, chemicals and pharmaceuticals -- industries that rely heavily on agriculture for their livelihoods.

Taxpayer -- The farmer pays his share of the costs of government and public programs. In 1967, for instance, farm real estate taxes brought in some $153 million.

Consumer -- Farmers are spending about $2.5 billion a year for goods and services just to produce their crops and livestock - and an other $690 million for the things we all use (like food, clothing, medicines and other goods and services).

Supplier -- Besides being the provider of food for domestic markets, Canadian agriculture is an important exporter, moving some 350 million bushels of wheat and 239,000 head of cattle among other things, into foreign markets in 1967 alone.

Our agricultural abundance is a powerful force for world peace. Hungry people often are restless people too weak or disorganized to resist becoming tools of disruptive political movements. Canadian farm products are helping to relieve hunger as they promote economic growth overseas.

We accept foreign currencies from countries that need our farm products. In recent years, the value of agricultural products exported has been 20% of the total value of all Canadian commodities sold in foreign markets. In 1967, Canadian agriculture exported products valued at $1.4 billion.

LIBRARY NEWS

The August National Geographic has the following articles, all beautifully illustrated.

Oklahoma - a history of that state; What's so Special About Spiders; Help for Phillipine Tribes in Trouble; and Science's Window on the Sea as the name suggests a study of under water life.

The August Consumer Reports give the following rather startling information. A consumer is wrong if she assumes that a dish washing detergent price can be calculated by the price marked for a given number of fluid ounces. The price should be calculated by the amount of work the product does. According to tests Ajax, New, Palmolive and Vel, Rose Lotion, with Rose Water are the best buys. Why not drop in and read the article and find where your favourite hand washing detergent appears on the list?

Other articles in this issue deal with tires, woodworking vises, scouring powders and pads, Excedrin, bus wagons, washing machines and hamburger.

New books will be arriving next week and will be dealt with in the next library report.

Barb and George McLeod have their two grandsons from Donalda visiting for a while. Lyle (McLeod) is working in Edmonton.

The Buck Lake district should be proud to know that Ede and Fred Drader received 2nd prize when they entered Caezar and Cedric in the Klondike Days Parade in Edmonton. Congratulations.

Mary Parker travelled to Ottawa and is enjoying a visit with her Uncle and Aunt, Bob and Astrid Rivers and family.

Don and Pauline Molyneaux and family are visiting with her parents, Lawrence and Betty Bohning.

Sympathy is extended to the Walters family of Pendryl on the untimely passing of their son Norman.

Weekend guests at the Bouck's were friends Cliff and Cora Lewis and family of Didsbury.

The swimming instruction which took place during July was a success with most of the participants receiving their badges. Sincere thanks to all who gave of their time and energy - working on the dock, collecting fees, etc. The three weeks ended with a weiner roast on Friday night and presentations were made to Betty Bohning, who received a bathing suit and a beach towel. Darrell Patten and Lloyd Alcock both received wallets and beach towels for their help as swimming instructors.

One of Don and Violet Leslie's sons was injured on Monday while horseback riding. He was taken by ambulance to hospital.

Wilf and Madeline Prefontaine are expecting a visit from their daughter Lucy, Norman Lawe and boys, enroute to Saskatchewan.

Johnny Krysta and family are at Wabamun where he has been working for the past two weeks.

Congratulations and best wishes to John and Olga Adams on the arrival of a baby girl in the Drayton Valley Hospital. She weighed 7 lbs. 3 ozs. and her name is Christine Ellen.

Sympathy of the district to Vera Brzus and family on the loss of her Aunt Eleanor of Ponoka. Rudy was one of the Pallbearers.

The Bouck family returned Saturday night, July 24th after a four week vacation to various points in B. C. and Alberta.

Jim Foster returned from his job, then attended the Rocky Rodeo. He motored to Cremona, bringing Pat May back for a visit.

Sig, LeOpal and family were on holidays to B. C. through the Yellowhead Route. They visited his sister Terry at Hope, B. C., her grandmother at Penticton, and her parents at Kelowna.

COMMUNITY NEST

A peculiarity among some ducks is the habit of depositing their eggs in nests of their own or other species. Most notorious is the redhead which uses the nests of canvasback and ruddy ducks, as well as its own kind. These nests, known as community or dump nests may contain as many as 24 to 36 eggs. In all instances reported these large depositories were abandoned.

Additional Funds to Provide More Credit

The Hon. Henry Ruste, Alberta's minister of agriculture, commenting on Premier Strom's announcement that another $20 million will be made available to the Farm Purchase Credit Board explained that exceedingly strong credit demands have been made upon the board during the past four or five months.

He said that local advisory committees have had to turn away many young men who want to become established in the farming industry because all available funds under the Alberta Farm Purchase Board's jurisdiction have already been committed.

During the past 14 years the government has allocated $21 million to the Board. This money is lent out again as outstanding loans are paid off. The government now proposes to increase this revolving fund to $41 million dollars.

Mr. Ruste says that it has become increasingly evident in recent years that the Farm Credit Corporation's federal loan program requires a substantial equity ratio before granting a loan. This situation makes it very difficult for many young farmers to get a loan to buy the family farm or to get established on their own farm. Because the average age of Alberta farmers is now well up in the 50's, there will have to be a big turnover of farms to younger men within the next 10 years. These young farmers, said Mr. Ruste, are going to need a large amount of credit. He also pointed out that in addition to material assets, emphasis is going to have to be placed on managerial potential as a criteria for loan eligibility. However, those applying for a loan will be required to show that they are in a position to repay it without undue stress on their farming operations.

Mr. Ruste said that a careful review of the present lending policies of the Board will be made to determine whether any improvements can be made in the program to help preserve family farms.

Since its inception in 1958, the Alberta Farm Purchase Board has financed about $50 million worth of land which has helped approximately one of 10 of the province's commercial farmers to become established or to increase their holdings to an economic unit. Up to the present time the Board has not sustained any losses on its loans. This absence of losses reflects the careful evalu evaluation of a potential borrower's ability to repay the loan and to use the loan wisely.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

By Kevin Peterson and Don Sellar (Of the Calgary Herald)

Alberta's four political parties agree the province's lagging agriculture industry needs special attention from government if it is going to again contribute to an overall healthy economic growth picture.

As the August 30th election date draws nearer, the Social Credit government and its three opposition foes offer more and more remedies for farm problems. But none can claim to ride the crest of a winning agriculture policy.

All are committed to the lofty principle of preserving the family farm at a time when farm cash receipts are barely holding steady at depressed levels and the future of the grain trade is darkened by the United States' decision to resume trading with Communist countries.

Premier Harry Strom has announced immediate plans to double the Alberta Farm Purchase Board's $21 million budget so that young farmers will find it easier to buy the holdings of retiring farmers.

"If more loans are not made available to young farmers," Premier Strom warned a Socred banquet in Andrew, "many older farmers who want to retire will be forced to sell to corporate interests which have the available capital."

Other planks in the government's agriculture platform include a 25-per-cent rebate on crop insurance premiums, extension of coverage across the province and completion of the Alberta Government Telephones rural buried cable program as a step toward improving the quality of rural life.

Conservative leader Peter Lougheed has promised to create credit agencies to help farmers obtain the money they need to keep their operations economically sound.

"A PC government would develop an insured mortgage credit program like Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to induce commercial lending institutions to participate more extensively in farm credit," he says.

Grant Notley's New Democratic party is convinced the two major parties haven't committed themselves to anything but tokenism in agriculture and that more radical, long-term measures are required.

"The Tory twins are running around the province saying that they will preserve the family farm, but at the same time they are married to the 'Tradition and Transition' task force report on agriculture which says that two out of three family farms must be closed down. They should make up their minds," Mr. Notley says.

The New Democrats would declare a one-year moratorium on farmers' debts, launch a debt refinancing scheme and institute land bank, public power, farm machinery testing, provincial weed control and other measures designed to lift agriculture out of the doldrums.

Alberta Liberals, while they aren't a serious contender in this election, are proposing commodity insurance for farmers, a veterinary college for Alberta and and Bank of Alberta equipped to satisfy farmers' credit needs.

Unfortunately, the farm debate is almost lacking as the harvest election approaches, even though there has been flooding in the north, hail in central districts and drought in the south to remind farmers of their precarious position.

In reply to a letter from the County Office the following is part of a reply from Mr. B. Ramsay regarding purchase of training equipment for the Assessor's Association through the County School Accounts:-

"If it is proposed that the County purchase this equipment for which it is to be owned and used by someone else other than the County, then it is our opinion that the County or its officials would not be acting within their statutory authority to purchase such equipment for someone else for the purpose of being exempt from the payment of excise tax. If such a purchase was made and the Excise Branch of the Federal Government became aware of the circumstances, it would be my opinion that the Federal Government would demand payment of the excise tax from the municipality."

Rural Development In Alberta

Although the transition of Alberta from a rural to a fairly well balanced rural-urban society has taken place gradually until the last decade, there has still been a significant number of people adversely affected. Residents in many walks of life in both rural and urban areas have been part of these changes, but the largest percentage of people confronted with difficult adjustments to the new opportunities have been in the rural regions.

Government programs in rural development were greatly expanded and increased in the late 1950's and early 1960's to alleviate the situation. However, despite the fact that federal, provincial and municipal governments joined forces and that the private sector of society also took an active part, the problems of rural adjustment and development are still with us 10 to 15 years later on both a provincial and national level. Why have these needs not been adequately met in the past decade or so?

Addressing the Canadian Council of Rural Development, Dr. Glen Purnell, Alberta's new deputy minister of agriculture, said the different relative positions of these two sectors of the economy have been emphasized by the rapid economic growth in urban areas during recent years and the corresponding decrease in the economic growth in rural areas. He believes that rapid economic change and their accompanying pressures always necessitate substantial adjustments in social patterns. He stresses that complete condemnation of programs aimed at helping social change in accordance with economic forces is unwarranted. Progress has been made and only time will provide a true basis for comprehensive judgment.

Dr. Purnell also brings out the point that program objectives in the past may have sometimes been imcompatible one with another within government jurisdictions, or between government jurisdictions and between public and private operations.

Although there has been a great deal of communication, consultation, co-operation and collaboration between the various levels of government and between private groups and agencies involved in rural development, the final outcome seems to have left some gaps, Dr. Purnell says.

"In my view", says Dr. Purnell, "this Gordian knot can be severed by a united effort to establish common long-range comprehensive goals or objectives and by making sure that these objectives reflect the views of individuals and families caught in the socio-economic web of development." He believes that it is very important that overall economic and social policies of a province, and of a nation, take into account and incorporate features relevant to the needs of all sections of society, including our rural areas. He says it is certainly necessary that special policies and programs for such operations as rural development take into account the overall provincial and national policies, but it is also important to remember that this is a two-way street.

Taxation, monetary, fiscal, trade and educational policies, for example, must take into consideration the problems and needs of our rural people so that we, in turn, have compatibility in specific programs to fit the needs of rural circumstances. Such programs could be more easily designed and implemented to be more beneficial to rural elements, and consequently to our overall economy and society.

"Canada is still a developing economy, and in this we are fortunate", says Dr. Purnell, "But the challenge is before us as leaders, and as interested citizens to influence the direction and pace of development in the future. I believe that the ability to forge the chain of progress and development in rural Canada is present in the country. But each of the links in this chain must be recognized, forged, tempered and hooked to the other for maximum strength. These links must include such things as the wants and needs of the person and his family involved in the development, rural institutions and groups, abilities of technical specialists at the local level, legislative and policy framework developed by various levels of government and the attitude of the public in general."

Wheat Pool Conducting Survey of Grain Producers

Alberta Wheat Pool is conducting a survey of grain producers throughout Alberta, designed to measure preferences concerning market requirements and services. Several thousand producers, selected at random, have been provided with a 27-part questionnaire, through which they can indicate their opinions regarding the present system of grain marketing, and provide a list of priorities for change.

Response to the questionnaire has been enthusiastic and returns are now being processed. The results of the survey will be used by Alberta Wheat Pool in deciding which services and functions deserve special attention, and which long-term industry trends should be encouraged by the Pool. It is recognized that the producers' desires and requirements should form the basis for change within the grain handling business, and indeed also in the grain production and processing parts of the industry.

While the great majority of those surveyed are no doubt members of Alberta Wheat Pool, the survey is not confined to this group, and valuable comments have been received from farmers living at points not served by this processing system at Alberta Pool headquarters.

Better Business Warns About Steel Building Sales

The manager of Edmonton's Better Business Bureau warns farmers who are approached by salesmen selling steel buildings to investiage before deciding to buy.

Although most outlets in Alberta for buildings and building supplies are completely reliable, there are a few salesmen, who are outright frauds, travelling around the province soliciting sales. At the present time, the Edmonton Better Business Bureau is aware of two such persons who have been trying to sell steel buildings without a license. There is also a good possibility that a number of unreliable people connected with a factory manufacturing these buildings in another province may start soliciting sales in Alberta again.

According to Bill Stutt, the Edmonton Better Business Bureau received a great many complaints about this time last year from people who had ordered steel buildings from direct salesmen. The most frequent complaints were late delivery--not just a few days, but many months; incomplete delivery; and no delivery--the salesman having disappeared with the down payment.

Here is what Mr. Stutt suggests farmers do to protect themselves against unethical salesmen. The principles apply to any product being sold by a direct salesman.

* First, and most important, insist on seeing the salesman's license. It is a pink wallet-sized card with the Alberta govemment's coat of arms on the top, the salesman's name and a statement to the effect that he is licensed as a salesman for such and such a company under the Licensing of Trades and Business Act. Since this company may represent only the sales organization or agent of a manufacturing company, be sure to ask if it is the company which actually manufactures the buildings. If the answer is "no", find out the name of the manufacturing company and where it is located. The back of the license will contain the type, or types, of products the salesman is authorized to sell. Make sure that steel buildings are listed.

Before a salesman can obtain a license, he must put up a bond. Hence, if there is any trouble regarding the validity of the contract, and if judgement goes a against the vendor, the purchaser can get his money back from the bond. If the salesman is not bonded, there is no way a purchaser can get his money even if the salesman is found guilty of fraud. This is the reason it is so important to make sure the salesman has a license. Any bona fide salesman will be quite happy to show his license. However, if he says that his manager or the company keeps his license, or make some other excuse, it is high time to become suspicious.

* Don't be rushed into signing a contract. The rushing technique is commonly used by unethical salesmen. If a salesman says he will be in the neighborhood for one day, that the price of his product is going up tomorrow, be very wary! An authentic salesman, representing an authentic company, will expect a prospective customer to take some time to think over his proposed purchase, especially when $7,000 to $12,000 is involved, as is the case with a steel building.

* Make absolutely sure that the specifications of the building are spelled out in the contract; that a list of the materials to be supplied is there in detail; and that the date of delivery or completion, whichever applies, is stated. A definte date of delivery or completion is extremely important.

* Do not give any money in advance. The salesman has recourse to the law if his purchaser should turn out to be a non-payer.

* Get the names and addresses of some customers who have bought steel buildings and check to see whether they are satisfied.

* Do some comparative shopping. The first man who comes along may have the best building at the best price, but he may not.

Mr. Stutt points out that there is an act in Alberta to protect people who buy from a direct salesman. It is called the Direct Sales Cancellation Act. Under it, the purchaser has four days, excluding Sunday, in which he may cancel his contract, providing he signed it in his own house. Cancellation must be done in writing. If the salesman suggests going to his motel room to sign the contract, or doing it over a cup of coffee in a restaurant, he could well be trying to get around the Direct Sales Cancellation Act. If you want the protection of this act, always sign a contract from a direct salesman in your own residence.

Finally, Mr. Stutt suggests keeping a copy of your letter cancelling the contract and strongly advises sending the original letter by registered mail. Then, if any controversy arises later as to whether it was mailed within the four day period, you have the proof.

EGG CARTON TEST

Have you ever come home from shopping and found your eggs were scrambled in a crushed carton?

If that's happened to you, you've probably wondered why egg cartons aren't made stronger.

Donald A. Fletcher of the Poultry Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, is conducting experiments to compare chipboard, molded fiber and styrofoam egg cartons provided by all the major carton manufacturers.

The boxes and cartons of eggs are being dropped, shaken, slammed into walls and given compression tests at a controlled atmosphere room in the Forest Products Laboratory, Department of Fisheries and Forestry.

All the data is being fed into a computer and the results are expected soon.

AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY SPOTS VIRUS IN CEREALS

Using aerial photography, scientists at the Canada Agriculture Research Station at Fredericton, N. B., were able to spot barley yellow dwarf virus disease in wheat, oat and barley crops last year.

Dr. C. C. Gill, a plant pathologist at the Winnipeg Research Station, says that although aerial photography worked well to spot the disease last year, further research is required to perfect this technique of surveying for the disease.

The studies indicated that barley yellow dwarf virus can be of economic importance on cereals in eastern Canada. This virus is also of concern in the west. Dr. Gill reported losses estimated at 1,380,860 bushels of barley in Manitoba in 1969.

EASYFORD NEWS

Our sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cameron in the loss of their son John, in a swimming accident in the Pembina River, August 1st.

Valerie Hutchinson was home from Calgary for the weekend visiting with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ball enjoyed the company of their nephew Melvin Stewart and his wife Colleen of Vancouver Island, also Mrs. Ball's sister Mrs. R. C. Nelson who were up from Calgary. Grandma Oscar, who has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Oscar since March, left last Monday for Quesnel, B. C. where she will stay with her daughter, Una Stewart. Ian Oscar and Markl Pickup drove her out and brought back Morris Oscar.

Many of our residents have been on holidays. Sonia and Pete Hutchinson, along with Joe and Shirley Vowk travelled and camped in B. C. While they were gone Neil Leilson, a student from Nova Scotia and working for Super Test, looked after Sonia's plants.

Roman and Dorothy Vowk and Mrs. Glover left Thursday for Fort Nelson to see Robert Glover.

Mary MacKenzie, with her children, Mary Jane and Betty Ann, spent four days in Evansburg at the Parkland Arts and Crafts school. It was a very rewarding holiday. Basketry, pottery, painting, tie-dying and macrame were taught. Sonia Hutchinson also motored out to teach basketry.

VIOLET GROVE

Violet Grove Community League meeting was held in the hall on August 4th with eight members present. Plans were made for a bingo on Saturday August 14th in the Violet Grove Hall with a jackpot of $54.00.

Ben: "Mac, I've changed my mind."

Mac: "Good, does it work any better?"
